THE MARTINI

15

The stuff of myth and legend and the sire of thousands of cocktails. Whether it was descended from the "Martinez" of the 1870s or something else we may never know. But most historians agree that the classic Martini is stirred, not shaken, made with Gin not Vodka and served ice-cold and straight up. But if you prefer Vodka...

Bombay Sapphire and Martini & Rossi Extra Dry, served with lime or a green olive.

THE MARGARITA

16

A drink with many competing legends. The earliest is from 1934 when Daniel Negrete opened the Garci Crespo Hotel in Pueblo with his brother David. On the eve of David's wedding, Daniel presented his brother's bride-to-be with a special drink he had created. Her name? Margarita!

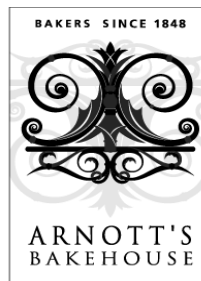

Tequila, Cointreau & lime juice served straight up in a salt-rimmed glass (with Murray River pink salt!).

THE COSMOPOLITAN

15

The show Sex and the City popularized the Cosmopolitan cocktail, informally referred to as a Cosmo. It is easily identifiable due to its pink tint and the fact that it is served in a distinctive martini glass

Vodka, Cointreau and cranberry juice mixed with lime and served in a martini glass

CHAMPAGNE COCKTAILS

16

Classic

The Champagne Cocktail appears to have its origins in the southern states of the USA in the mid 19th century. In 1889 though, John Dougherty won a cocktail competition in New York with a drink he called a Business Brace. That recipe is what we now call a Champagne Cocktail.

One sugar cube, Angostura and brandy, topped up with Grant Burge Pinot Chardonnay and served with a slice of orange.

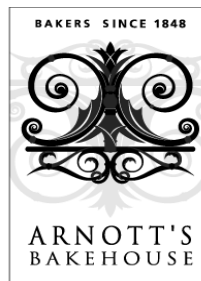

The French 75

Allegedly invented at Harry's Bar in Paris during World War I, by flying ace Raoul Lufbery, who wanted a bit more kick in his usual Champagne. The "kick" was sufficient for the drink to be named after the powerful French 75mm artillery piece, the Soixante Quinze. Brandy, lemon juice and sugar, topped with Grant Burge Pinot Chardonnay and served with a slice of lemon.

Kir Royale

Dating to 1841, but popularised by and named after Félix Kir, priest and French resistance fighter during World War II. Kir, awarded the Légion d'honneur in 1945, was the mayor of Dijon in Burgundy for 23 years from 1945 until his death in 1968.

Crème de Cassis, topped up with Grant Burge Pinot Chardonnay.
